

WatchGas is specialized in the delivery, maintenance, calibration, and commissioning of gas detection equipment.

As a company, our goal is to act as a leader in industrial gas detection in the field of advice, sales, rental, and maintenance, to guarantee protection for all our customers. We want to achieve this goal by continuously increasing our knowledge based on our technological and market knowledge and years of experience.

By continuously searching for new techniques and their applicability, we try to be leading in the market and strive to serve our customers in an even better way. By continuously working on possible innovations within industrial gas detection, we strive to protect our customers even better in potentially dangerous situations.

Due to our knowledge, speed, and adequacy of acting, we intend to remain the market leader in industrial gas detection. Our organization is based on several core values, the most important core value is included in this policy statement. It reads: "We do all the necessary to achieve our goal, and will never say that we have done our best".

The management and employees of WatchGas will make every effort to guarantee and improve the quality of all its products and services during the preparation and execution of all its activities. We will focus our policy on the pursuit of continuous quality monitoring and improvement of our products, processes, and services, under the NEN-EN-ISO 9001:2015 standard

Several concrete objectives will be formulated in the annual plan regarding the quality of products and services at WatchGas, which are relevant for a particular year. This plan will be evaluated, measured, and if necessary, adjusted during the management review.

The management commits to determine the necessary conditions and to make available the means to maintain and continuously improve the quality policy. The management will also play a pioneering role in complying with the agreed methods.

We expect from all employees that they will collaborate in good harmony and with mutual trust within the organization. A Quality, Environment, Safety & Health manager & assistant and management representative are appointed to manage, maintain, and secure the policy. The employees get informed about the policy as soon as they start employment, as well as about the importance of meeting the quality requirements of WatchGas' products, services, and working methods, thence we can meet the customers' expectations and meeting the law requirements.

The director has the final responsibility for the policy. The main task of the Quality, Environment, Safety & Health manager is to report to the director about the performance of the Quality, Environment, Safety & Health management system.

The policy statement will be evaluated annually and if necessary adjusted based on the output of the management review. The modified policy statement will be distributed throughout the organization thereafter.
